

Words....

...from a former Razor client

Hello,

I apologize for the delay since I was on vacation and I just returned this morning! Obviously not being a person with a great writing skills, Jason has been of tremendous help in capturing my persona and essence on paper. Just to give you a hot second bio of how I came across Jason: it was the first of the year and I promised myself that I wanted to have a new career! I wanted to change my life and why not begin on day 2 of 2008. I found his site extremely informative and just picked up the phone and reached out to him. Normally I would email a ton of people and see who returns my emails within a short time-frame and that is who earns my business. With him I just picked up the phone and that was it! To my surprised not only did he ans. my call but he took the time to hear my out, my passions, my goals & aspirations in life (I probably rambled a bit too much but he listened). Not knowing him at all I spilled my guts out to him and let him know that I am who I am but I just cannot convey my personality on paper!

He took it all in and did a superb job within a decent time frame (for me at that time I had three months so he did it in much less time then that but he touched based with me after doing the job)! And trust me, I just feel that he takes it all in, lets it marinate and then creates a masterpiece that is unique in many ways. And then to top it off he keeps in contact with you giving you suggestions about any detours you may have taken along your travels of soul searching or job searching or just what if's...

So in my opinion he has given my an edge over the next guy or gal or shall I say candidate that my be looking for the same deal I am including a person whom you can reach out to a give 'em a high five at the end of the day!

That's what I think about Jason!

Sandy Navarro, NYC